Those who saw the Missouri exhibit at Omaha were highly pleased with the meth-Omaha were highly pleased with the method employed to show the products of the State to the visitors. The man who did most of the designing was J. Ed Crumbaugh of Columbia. Mr. Crumbaugh has been employed by the Commissioners of the Pan-American Exposition to superintend the erection of the Missouri building and to install the exhibits. He was at the Laclede Hotel yesterday, and, in discussing the exposition business, said:

"A funny thing occurred while I was at work placing the exhibits in the Missouri work placing the exhibits in the Missouri section at Omaha. I had a pagoda manufactured and upon it I placed shocks of Missouri corn and wheat. On the roof, which was at a decided angle. I drave a barrel or more of small nails. One day the laborary were placing cotton on the roof. barrel or more of small halls. One day the laborers were placing cotton on the roof to act as a covering, at the same time demonstrating the various products of the State. A gentleman from Missouri and several ladies came along. State. A gentleman from Missouri and several ladies came along. I knew him well.

"'Hello, Crumbaugh,' said he; 'what ere you putting cotton on that roof for?"

"'What for,' said I. 'Why, I'm putting it on because it is one of the products of Missouri, and it belongs there."

"Shoo-get out,' said he. 'You can't tell me anything like that."

"Then I told him he didn't know what his own State produced. When I remarked that Pemiscot, Dunklin and several other southeastern counties in Missouri produced some of the finest cotton in the Union and that it graded way up, he was surorised. And it's my opinion that half of the people do not know the wide variety of products the State produces. If I had my way, I would send an exposition around over the State of Missouri on wheels. I think it would prove a drawing card and enighten lots of people.

"If we don't come back from Buffalo with the greatest lot of awards of any State, I am willing to change my nome to Dennis. Missouri is without a peer, and we can show those Easterners a few things at Buffalo that will open their eyes. On the extent of four manufactures we can give them a few pointers, I think, and I expect to see Missouri do mignty well in its display."

"Pulaski County is making rapid strides forward," said J. A. Armstrong of that county and member of the Democratic State Committee. "Within the last tree months we have had many settlers come in from other States. The majority of them come from Iowa. Land in Pulaski County is as cheap as that owned by the Government thrown open for settlement. We have plenty of it that can be purchased for about $1.50 per acre. The land belongs to the Frisco Railroad, and is a portion of the original grant made to that road by the United States. Some of it is good land, and it is on these farms that most of the immigrants are settling.

"A farmer moves out of a certain locality in a county, and if he likes the country all his former neighbors are informed of the new Golconda. That starts the ball roiling, and the endless-chain system begins in earnest. It does not take long to settle up a county well when once the tide of immigration sets in.

CRAWFORD'S two house-furnishing experts (a male and a female) have just returned from New York and Philadelphia and the manufacturing districts of the Bast, and if you were to believe them (Mr. Crawford does), they are the only two smart people, now living, in the business. "Why!!" they breathlessly said, "you know we were a little late in going on. The other buyers had all been there and had gone home; the manufacturers and others had all concluded that business was over for the reason, so we had everything our own way. We were the only big buyers in the market. If we did not get the snaps, it's no use talking. Just wait till you see. Maybe you'll scold us for buying so much, but we couldn't help it." "Would not scold you if you had bought a million." said Mr. C. "The more you buy at the prices you name the better I'd like you. Where is the stuff?" "Oh!! they're coming!! They're coming; just you wait and see." We now give a hint to the public and say, "Wait'; look out for some staggering displays in windows on the Washington Avenue Front soon!!

"Texas is the coming country, especially the northern portion," said John Withers of Sherman. "At Sherman we have one of the best towns in the Union in proportion to its age. We have a Government building and schools till you can't rest. We have all of these things and many more in promise. "When the Territory land is opened for settlement North Texas will be alive with industry. It means that Sherman will take on a big boom. It's bound to be the principal center for distribution, and you know what that means."

Mr. Withers is well known in Missouri, where he was agent for the Barber Asphalt Company for several years. He took an active interest in politics, but declares now that politics is slow in comparison with the excitement of living in a community such as Sherman, which is going ahead so fast that citizens have hard times becoming acquainted with their next-door neighbors.

early Friday morning, when she left her home on Essex street, apparently to assume her duties as bookkeeper for the Beverly Engine and Machine Company, she has not been heard from.

Miss Woodbury is the daughter of Alvah Woodbury, a Councilman of Beverly.

The only plausible reason given for her disappearance is that she is suffering from temporary aberration of mind. She had been working hard at the factory of late, and this, with her many social engagements, may have affected her brain.

JEFFERSON CLUB WINS BRANDENBERGER SUIT

Court of Appeals Holds That the Organization Had the Right to Expel Him.

OTHER CASES ARE DECIDED.

People's Railway Suit for Use of Tracks Transferred to the State Supreme Court-Additional Opinions.

The Court of Appeals Tuesday affirmed the ruling of the Circuit Court sustaining the Jefferson Club Association in expelling William A. Brandenberger as a member of the Jefferson Club. Brandenberger was treasurer and a director of the club. On February 20, 1900, charges were preferred against him, signed by three members of the club-Clinton Boogher, Andrew J. Butler and Thad C. Harris-alleging that he allied himself with another political organization antagonistic to the Jefferson Club. The organization with which Brandenberger was alleged to have affiliated himself was formed, it was stated, for the purpose of organizing a bolt in the Democratic Convention unless the convention would adopt certain theories and make them an issue in the next municipal campaign.

Brandenberger was notified of the charges, which embraced several counts, and the matter was set for hearing before the Board of Directors of the Jefferson Club March 3, following. Brandenberger appeared and filed a protest reciting that the direct-ors did not have jurisdiction to try him under the constitution of the club. He deunder the constitution of the club. He de-nied that the charges were true and averred that if they were true that they did not constitute an offense. He refused to make any statement.

The directors sustained the charges and voted to expel Brandenberger, who applied to the Circuit Court for a writ of man-damus to compel the directors to allow him to exercise his rights as a member and of-ficer of the club.

The matter was referred to Judge With-row, who then occupied the bench in Divi-sion No. 3 of the Circuit Court. Judge Withrow denied the peremptory writ of mandamus asked for and Brandenberger appealed.

The Court of Appeals in affirming the decision of Judge Withrow, states that a so-ciety ought not to retain a person who refuses to conform to its rules, or, to assist in accomplishing its objects, or, makes him-self obnoxious to the majority. The bylaw of the Jefferson Club, which authorizes the expulsion of a member for cause, the Court states, is in harmony with the statutory provision.
Suit of the People's Railway.

Greeky," said Mr. Bailey, on his present trip to town, "I agree with Gibbon that Marcus Aurelius was the greatest of all the Roman Emperors and the only man in the world's history who had autocratic powers over 100,000,000 people and yet used his authority for the common good of all. But American political affairs are just now more interesting to the average good Democrat.

"Senator Jones will not be continued as the Democratic party's head in the Senate. There is much talk of Senator Bacon of Georgia being put in Jones's place. Bacon is able and aggressive. If he is made spokesman for our side in the Senate, there will be few political errors made. I take no stock in all this talk about the Democratic party being in a bad plight, with a hopeless future. It is true that we have encountered two defeats; but we are, I think, in splendid shape for the battles that are ahead of us. The party is gradually being cemented, wounds are healing, and our standard-bearer in 1904 will have a unitted organization behind him.

"It is too early to discuss presidential candidates. Matters of that kind usually adjust themselves. To win battles, a political party must present a solid front, and enter a campaign united, enthusiastic and aggressive. I believe in flying the flag we fight under as high as it can be raised; but I do not subscribe to the doctrine that we should drive men out of our party, just because it can be done. I am an old-fashion Democrat, who would like to see the next national ticket poll every Democratic vote in the Union. I believe the men who will set in the next national convention will feel the same way. The Democratic party is not even stunned; it will yet follow the hearse of the organization that has temporarily triumphed over it."

"Ienlisted in Company E, First Regiment New York Volunteers, at the beginning of the war with 8 pain. While on garrison duty at Honolulu I was stricken with malaria, which was complicated with kidney trouble. I was in the hospital twenty-one days, and when discharged my health was shattered.
